

Slip & Fall Cases

Legal liability in a slip and fall case is a result of premises liability, where a property owner is responsible for the safe condition of their property. These cases can be difficult and require timely investigation and an understanding of the elements of proof needed to win a case. Our firm has experience handling slip and fall matters, in addition to other types of premises liability cases. We are able to assess the situation and quickly determine how to move forward with your case.

Many slip and falls happen in retail stores, where products may be dropped on the floor and leave a slippery spot for unsuspecting shoppers to fall and injure themselves. A store owes a duty to customers to keep their aisles clean and safe, and when they allow wet spills to go unattended or pallets are abandoned and create a hazard where shoppers can trip, the store is responsible for the injuries that result. You may also suffer a trip and fall on poorly maintained stairs, sidewalks and in parking lots.
